Do you ever struggle with providing feedback? Serving as a mentor, manager or leader often allows you opportunities to help others grow, but providing constructive feedback can be a difficult task and precipitate difficult conversations. This workshop will outline 3 key ways to provide effective feedback and boost your ability to help others learn and grow.

Dr. Huebner is regularly asked to provide professional development and support training to UE faculty and local leaders.

I am so excited about our upcoming meeting!

It was great to see so many of you in-person in March, but I was also a little anxious. Would we feel comfortable sitting next to each other at the tables? Would we be able to network while wearing masks? Would we have many of our members attend after meeting via zoom for so many months?

It went more smoothly than I could have hoped. Everyone I spoke with seemed genuinely happy to be back together. The turnout was larger than it was for any of our zoom meetings and our program, wow, it was fantastic!

This month we will welcome back non-profits during the pre-meeting networking. Any non-profit may reserve one of the tables in the lower ballroom to spread the word about their organization. Reach out to Rita Joest if you would like to reserve a table. Tables are limited and non-profits can reserve a table once per year.

I can't wait for this month's meeting. Dr. Bethany Huebner will share ways to provide effective feedback and help others learn and grow. This really resonates with me as I am constantly seeking ways to motivate my team and make sure they realize the importance of their work. One of my staff members recently told me that she'd never left a job because of the work; she'd only quit because of her managers. That hit home because I've done the same. It's a great reminder that finding meaning in my work is important, but it is equally important to value my team and make sure they know it.

One last reminder, be sure to make your meeting reservation online. If you need to modify your reservation at any time, it's very simple. Go to the ANEW website and click on your login name in the top right corner. Your information will pop up and you will see a prompt for "My Reservations". Click that and edit as needed.

See you all soon!

Sincerely,
Angie Richards Cheek

5 Things you don't know about Katelynne Edge

Describe your career path to reach your current position.

I went to college with the idea of working in sports broadcasting. I decided having an understanding of promotions and marketing would be helpful, but sales was too risky. After receiving a BS in Advertising, several years in retail sales, then marketing and I was finally brave enough to take a chance at sales. Which is when I finally made it to working in broadcasting. Just in a different role than originally planned.

What part of your job is most satisfying? I love that I have the ability to help small businesses grow. I also love that it's never the same day twice.

What make and model was your first car? 1989 Dodge Minivan- I know you are all jealous, lol. Oh, it was a stickshift!

When I was little I wanted to be a Lawyer when I grew up.

I would love to vacation in Greece, taking in the history and culture. Also visiting the site of the ancient Olympic Games.

What is your favorite thing about being an ANEW member? What I've learned from several of the monthly speakers and the connections I've made with people I may not have met otherwise.
