Deadline is fast approaching, Sept 15th!

We invite you to reflect on the extraordinary women within our ANEW community who truly embody our core values of empowerment and collaboration. Do you know an ANEW member whose remarkable contributions in volunteerism, professional endeavors, or personal achievements set her apart? Perhaps she has gone above and beyond, inspiring others and making a profound impact on our collective journey. This esteemed award is not merely a recognition; it is a heartfelt celebration of the spirit of support and solidarity that defines our organization. By nominating a deserving member, you are contributing to a culture of appreciation that uplifts and honors the incredible accomplishments of women in Evansville. Let us come together to acknowledge and celebrate those who exemplify excellence in all they do!

Nominate someone today!

President's Letter

Dear Friends,

As we move into September, I always feel a shift in energy. Summer's pace slows, routines settle back in, and we begin to look toward the close of the year. It's a natural time to take stock of where we've been and where we're headed.

For our network, that means asking how we continue to grow as women leaders and how we can support one another in meaningful ways. Over the past months, I've seen the strength of our connections – in conversations over coffee, collaborations sparked at monthly meetings, and the encouragement we offer each other when challenges arise. That's what makes this group powerful.

This month, I encourage you to think about how you might show up for someone else in the network. Is there a woman you can introduce to a colleague? A resource you can share? A story you can tell that might inspire? These small acts keep our community vibrant and strong.

And speaking of showing up, don't miss our Membership Appreciation Trivia Night on Wednesday, September 25 at 5:00 pm. This is more than just a fun evening (though it will definitely be that). It's a chance to celebrate each other, strengthen connections, and enjoy a well-deserved break together. Mark your calendar, grab a friend, and come ready to laugh, compete, and connect. Your presence is what makes these gatherings special.

I'm looking forward to seeing many of you there and to the opportunities this fall will bring for us to learn, connect, and lead together.

With gratitude,

Aimee Stachura

* Name and explain one skill you learned from a mentor.

I have been lucky to have several great mentors throughout my professional career that have taught me many valuable life lessons. My first mentor, who could be quite intimidating, taught me to always be thankful and to say thank you to those who have contributed to your professional growth and successes. My second mentor taught me never to accept no as the first answer; there is always another avenue to traverse to get you to your goal.

* What part of your job is most satisfying?: Knowing, in some little way, I am helping others in our community get the services and resources they need to live with dignity and purpose.

* I would love to vacation to the United Kingdom and Scotland and see the beautiful architecture, experience the culture, and visit Wimbledon and the Highlands.

*What does ANEW mean to me?

Although this might be quite simple, but to me, ANEW is a great group of intelligent, capable, and accomplished women who seek to lift each other up and support one another through professional and personal mentorship. I have been extremely blessed to have been introduced and welcomed into this group and have been introduced to so many women that I may never would have met if it hadn't been for ANEW.
