It is hard to believe that another summer is winding down and school days are returning. Exciting times are upon us though with the Paris Summer Olympics. Here are a few interesting facts about the Olympics.

1. Ancient Origins: The original Olympic Games were held in Olympia, Greece, in 776 BCE. They were part of a religious festival honoring Zeus, the king of the Greek gods. In ancient Greece, only free men who spoke Greek were allowed to compete in the Olympics. Women were not permitted to participate or even watch the games. However, there was a separate festival for women called the Heraean Games.

2. Victory Prizes: The prize for winning an event in the ancient Olympics was a simple olive wreath, also known as a "kotinos," made from a sacred olive tree in Olympia. Unlike today's medals, there were no second or third-place awards.
3. The Modern Revival: The modern Olympics were revived in 1896 by Pierre de Coubertin. The first modern Games were held in Athens, Greece, and featured 13 countries competing in 43 events.
4. The Olympic Flame: The tradition of the Olympic flame began in 1928. The flame is lit in Olympia, Greece, and then carried by relay runners to the host city of the Games. It symbolizes the continuity between the ancient and modern Olympics.
5. No Olympic Games in 1940 and 1944: Due to World War II, the 1940 and 1944 Olympics were canceled. The Games resumed in 1948 in London.

5 Things you didn't know about Debra McNutt:

1. Name and explain one skill you learned from a mentor. I thought about this. My mentor is my grandmother. My grandmother instilled in me - the core belief in being independent & being a working career woman. She was fiercely independent. She lived in a small coal mining town in Indiana. She went to Depauw University & became a grade school teacher in her hometown. She met & married my grandfather later in life. She had her own investment accounts & followed the stock market. She traveled to Europe on the group school trips. She loved her family fiercely but kept her independence as well. This instilled in me a strong core belief in myself that I carry with me - that I can do anything. I am not afraid of making investments, traveling on my own.
2. Describe your career path to reach your current position. My career path is varied. I started at a local radio station selling "air time". I sold "drugs" for about 12 years in the pharma industry. I have a varied background - but always in "outside sales". I always worked for someone else, a corporation - I am happy now that I work for myself in local real estate. But the core behind it all is working with people.
3. What is your greatest achievement?
 - a. Personal: Raising two adult men that are amazing humans.
 - b. Professional: My long varied career that made me both resilient & flexible. I am still striving!
4. What part of your job is most satisfying? Being in the "zone" with a novice who has never played (like me). Please plan to attend pickleball, social hour, or both, whatever best fits your schedule.

Respectfully yours,

Lindsay Charles
