always meant the beginning of summer vacation, pool parties, long sunny days, and my birthday month (no presents please ;)). It is also a great time for reflection as the midway point of the year. Six months in, six months to go. As the 2022 President, it's hard to believe my term is halfway over. Time flies when you're having fun! But, what an appropriate time to look back at where we've already been as an organization.

We've had phenomenal speakers thus far, and a great line-up going forward. We've had two speakers who taught us about resilience. Katy Adams with Southwestern Behavioral Healthcare taught us to leave our boots at the door, leaving our literal and emotional muck outside before we pull it into our homes and family life. Cindi Clayton shared decision deltas with us, and helped us navigate whether to stay with a job, task, or relationship and when it is time to move on.

Two meetings have allowed us to get deeper as an organization, whether through networking in February or by learning from our very own membership leaders. Just last month we had an exceptional panel who shared their insights and then allowed impromptu feedback and sharing from the attending members. What a wonderful, organic forum that showcased our own brilliant women. Such a proud moment.

This spring Lindsay Locasto, founding member of Seven Sisters, joined us to talk about her experience as an advocate for the opioid crisis, and the local impact it has had on our community and families. Her story was touching, and motivational, inspiring us that we can all be agents of change when our passions move us.

And I hope you'll all join us at our June meeting, when we'll feature another woman leader, Anna Gray with the Evansville Police Department, who will talk about personal safety and how to report a crime.

When people ask me about ANEW, the quality of programs is nearly always top of the benefits I share. Over the years, I've learned so much and am so grateful to our speakers and the Program Committees that have made it possible. And I'm thankful to each of you! Because without a strong membership, we couldn't attract such high quality presenters and have the reputation as a powerful organization that is shaping the future.

So welcome to June, and let's make the second half of 2022 even better than the first.

Cheers!
